

No	Name	Tense	Pharse in The Story	Function
1	Hudzaifah	simple past	past	malin kunda left
2	hudzaifah	past continus	past	his mother was weeping
3	Alfian	past perfect	past	her husband had abandoned
4	Alfian	past perfect continous	past	he had been dreaming
5	okta	Simple Past Future	past	her son would never return
6	okta	Past Future Continuous	past	he would be waiting
7	Fathiyaturohmah	Simple Present,	present	the legend teach us
8	Fathiyaturohmah	Present Continuous	presnet	The stone statue is kneeling
9	roman	Present Perfec	present	,tourists have visited
10	roman	Present Perfect Continuous	present	Present,the local people have been telling
11	roman	Simple Future	future	we will tell this story
12	roman	Future Continuous	future	its core message will be enduring

1. real story

Past Tenses: Years ago, Malin Kundang left (Simple Past) his village to seek fortune; he had been dreaming (Past Perfect Continuous) of wealth since he was a small boy. At that time, his poor mother was weeping (Past Continuous) on the shore, fearing that her son would never return (Simple Past Future). She knew her husband had abandoned (Past Perfect) them years before, and she would be waiting (Past Future Continuous) endlessly for Malin's promised return. Present Tenses: Today, the legend of Malin Kundang teaches (Simple Present) us a strong moral lesson. The stone statue is kneeling (Present Continuous) on Air Manis beach, a site many tourists have visited (Present Perfect) to reflect on the tragedy. Present Perfect Continuous: For generations, the local people have been telling this tale to their children, maintaining its relevance. Future Tenses: Moving forward, we will tell (Simple Future) this story in new media, adapting it for modern audiences, and its core message will be enduring (Future Continuous) for all eternity.